THE ESSEX ALMANACK,

For the Year of our Lord CHRIST,

1771.

Being the third after BISSEXTILE, or LEAP-YEAR.

Calculated for the Meridian of SALEM, in NEW-ENGLAND, Lat. 42 D. 35 M. North.

CONTAINING,

An Ephemeris, Phenomena and Obſervations in each Month, Spring Tides, Judgment of the Weather, Feaſts and Faſts of the Church, Quakers Meetings, Courts in the four New-England Governments, Sun and Moon's Riſing and Setting, Moon's Place, A Table ſhewing the Time of Night by the Pointers, Time of High Water at Salem, Publick Roads, with the beſt Stages or Houſes to put up at, Eclipſes, &c. &c.——ALSO,

A great Variety of uſeful, entertaining Pieces, in Proſe and Verſe, ſelect Sentences, uſeful Maxims & good Cautions.

By Philo Freeman.

GOD ſpake th' omnific Word, and lo! around
Our Sun, the Planets danc'd their circling Round.
The firſt, and neareſt to the central Sun,
Briſk jovial Mercury his Circle run.
Next in a larger Orb, admir'd by all,
Love's Goddeſs Venus, roll'd her ſplendid Ball.
Then ſprang the Earth (attended by the Moon)
And circumſcrib'd her Area round the Sun.
Now fiery Mars proceeds with ſlower Pace,
Confeſs'd the Ruler of the warlike Race.
And Jove majeſtick, with his ſhining Train
Of Satellites, cut the ætherial Plain.
The ſixth and laſt, ſlow Saturn lagg'd along,
The utmoſt of the planetary Throng;
A mighty Ring, and five fair Moons combine,
T' adorn his Sphere, and glorious round him ſhine.

RULES to prevent approaching DISORDERS.

WHEN Diſorders are perceived to make their Approach, they ſhould be prevented, by removing their Cauſes as ſoon as poſſible. A Man ſeems to be in a middle State, between Health and Sickneſs, when he has ſome ſlight Ailment, that does not confine him to his Bed, or from Buſineſs: Such as an inconſiderable Head-ach, Loſs of Appetite, ſome unuſual Wearineſs, Weight or Drowſineſs: But it is the Part of a wiſe Man to prevent theſe ſmall Diſorders from growing worſe, by correcting, without Delay, the Diſpoſition from which they are derived. If, for Example, the Complaint ariſes from too great a Fulneſs, that Fulneſs ſhould be diminiſhed by Abſtinence, or (if Abſtinence is not ſufficient) by Bleeding, Purging, or Sweating.

If it ariſes from Crudities and Indigeſtion, the Remedy to prevent its growing worſe, is to keep one's ſelf warm; to live abſtemiouſly and quietly for ſome Days; and to drink a little good Wine, to ſtrengthen the Stomach; and in general, we ſhould endeavour to remove the preſent ſlight Complaint, by purſuing a method, in its tendency and Effects, directly contrary to the Cauſe which produced that Complaint; or, in other Words, thick Humours muſt be attenuated; acrimonious and redundant Humours, corrected and diſcharged; crude Humours concocted; Contractions relaxed; and Obſtructions opened.

When a beginning Cold or Cough threatens an impending Fever, the Cough ſhould be removed, and the Fever prevented, by preſcribing Air and Exerciſe, and a cooling Ptiſane for Drink (made of Barley, decocted with Raiſins and Liquorice) together with Abſtinence from Fleſh Meat, and ſtrong Liquors.

Boerhaave recommends the three following Receipts to prevent Diſtempers.

1. As ſoon as we perceive, from certain Symptons, that any Diſtemper is approaching, we ſhould prevent it, by purſuing a Method oppoſite to the Cauſe which is likely to produce it: And this Method chiefly conſiſts in uſing the following Means, viz. We muſt, in the firſt Place, practiſe Abſtinence and Reſt, and drink ſeveral Draughts of warm Water: We ought next to uſe ſome moderate Exerciſe, and perſiſt in it, until a gentle Sweat begins to break out: After which, we ſhould immediately go into a warm Bed, and there indulge a free Perſpiration, and ſleep as long as we conveniently can; for it is obvious, that by theſe Means the Veſſels are relaxed, groſs Humours are diluted, and noxious Humours are diſcharged. Thus impending Diſtempers are prevented, by removing their Cauſes.

2. To guard againſt Diſtempers in general, there cannot be a more uſeful Precaution, than to keep up a free and uniform Perſpiration, by not laying aſide our Winter Garments before a warm May, and by putting them on before a cold November.

3. In Summer, our Diet ſhould be light, ſoft and mild; our Drink cool and our Exerciſe gentle. In Winter, on the contrary, our Food ought to be ſolid, dry and ſavoury, warmed with a little good Wine, and the Exerciſe vigorous. In Spring and Autumn, the Aliment and Exerciſe ſhould keep a Medium between both, but leaning to thoſe of the Summer or Winter, as one is more or leſs affected with Heat or Cold.

Here we ſhall ſubjoin a ſimple and eaſy Method of preventing impending Diſtempers, frequently practiſed with good ſucceſs, viz. When you find yourſelf indiſpoſed, go directly to Bed, and there lie for one, two, or three Days, until your Complaints are removed, living all the while on Water Gruel, or Panada, for Food; or on Water, or ſmall warm Negus, or White Wine Whey, for Drink; your Gruel or Panada, may be made more or leſs ſubſtantial, as you require them. Where this agrees with the ſtomach, and Time can be ſpared, it will be found more beneficial than perhaps may be readily imagined.

OBSERVATIONS of Eclipſes, when accurate, ſerve to examine whether the Elements of the Theory of the Sun and Moon, contained in aſtronomical Tables, are exact or not; but their principal Uſe is to determine the Longitude of thoſe Places where theſe Obſervations are made, or rather to find the Difference of Meridians :—— There will be four Eclipſes this preſent Year, which may each afford an Opportunity to the curious Mind to exerciſe itſelf in theſe important Points. Two of them will be viſible, and two inviſible to us.

The firſt will be an Eclipſe of the Moon, April 28th.

	h.	m.	ſ.
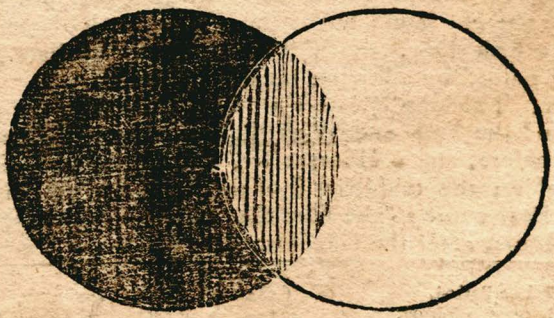
Beginning,	8	25	57	Afternoon. 3,84 Digits eclipſed.
Middle,	9	27	33
End,	10	29	9

The ſecond will be of the Sun on the 14th of May, but by Reaſon of the Moon's S. Latitude at that Time will be inviſible to us.

The third will be of the Moon on the 23d of October, but as it happens about Noon it will be inviſible to us.

The 4th and laſt will be an Eclipſe of the Sun, Nov. 6th.

Beginning,	1*h.*	48*m.*	Afternoon. 4,5 Digits eclipſed.
Middle,	2	52
End,	3	55



A the Sun's Diſk. B the Moon's Diſk.

By this Diagram is ſhewn the Situation and Appearance of the Diſks of the Sun and Moon, in an Eclipſe of the Sun, on the 6th of November, 1771. The Diagram is made to ſhew the Appearance at the Middle of the Eclipſe.

THE Husbandman retired from the World, and destitute of any certain Method to inform himself of the Time of Night, the Traveller thro' the lonely Desart, and the curious Seaman, are here presented with

For the Use of this Table, the Reader is desired to remember, that at the Times expressed above, the Pointers in the Great Bear (so called because they point to the N. Pole or polar Star) are in a Line with that Star perpendicular to the Horizon; but as the Table is calculated only to every fifth Day, the Time for the intermediate Days may be gained by allowing for every Day 4 m.

Note, That the Pointers are in a Line with the polar Star, and the East and West Points of the Horizon, 6 Hours before, and 6 Hours after, the Times expressed in the Table; the middlemost of the other five Stars in the Great Bear come to the Meridian two Hours, and the last three Hours, after the said Times.

28th Day, ♂ ♀ ☿

Names and Characters of the Seven Planets, so called, viz.

☉ The Sun, which is not properly a Planet, but of the Nature of a fixt Star.

☿ Mercury, which moves round the Sun in 87 Days and is the nearest Planet to it.

♀ Venus, next above Mercury, and moves round the Sun in about 225 Days.

⊕ The Earth, (next above Venus) not usually reckoned among the Planets, though it is one, moving round the Sun in 365 Days.

☽ The Moon, moving round the Earth in about 28 Days and going with it round the Sun.

♂ Mars, next above the Earth, moves round the Sun in 687 Days.

♃ Jupiter, next above Mars, moves round the Sun in about 12 Years; the biggest of all the Planets and is attended with four Moons.

♄ Saturn, next above Jupiter and near as large, attended with five Moons moves round the Sun in about 30 Years.

Receipt for the Bite of a Snake.

THE bite of a Rattle Snake, hitherto looked upon as a most terrible accident, may now be cured in a simple easy manner; it is the invention of a negro, for the discovery of which he had his freedom purchased and 100l. per annum settled on him during his life, by the general assembly of Carolina, which I mention as being necessary to establish the credit of the receipt.-----Take of plantane and horehound (in Summer the roots and branches together) a sufficient quantity, bruise them and squeese out the juice, of which give as soon as possible one large spoonful; if he be swelled you must force it down his throat, this generally will cure; but if the patient finds no relief an hour after, you may give another spoonful, which never fails. If the roots are dried they must be moistened with a little water. To the wound may be applied a leaf of good tobacco, moistened with a little rum, &c.

The Importance of the Liberty of the PRESS.

THE Press is dangerous in a despotic Government; but in a free Country may be very useful, as long as it is under no Correction; for it is of great Consequence, that the people should be informed of every Thing that concerns them; and, without Printing, such Knowledge could not circulate either so easily, or so fast; and to argue against any Branch of Liberty, from the ill use that may be made of it, is to argue against Liberty itself, since all is capable of being abused. Nor can any Part of Freedom be more important or better worth contending for, than that by which the Spirit of it is preserved, supported, and diffused. By this Appeal to the Judgment of the People, we lay some Restraint upon those Ministers, who may have found Means to secure themselves from any other less incorruptible Tribunal: And sure they have no Reason to complain, if the Public exercises a Right which cannot be denied, without avowing, that their Conduct will not bear Enquiry; for though the best Administration may be attacked by Calumny, I can hardly believe it would be hurt by it.

The Character of a News-Monger.

IT is requisite in Society, sometimes to discourse of News, and the current Reports: But the Character of a Newsmonger leads to Ridicule. 'Tis a kind of Profession that degrades a Man beneath himself. This sort of People always accost you with the same Compliment: How goes it in the World now? What News do you hear? Whatever Business you have on your Hands they never leave you till they have related all they know, or all they have dream'd

A Sketch of ſome peculiar Laws of the Lacedæmonians, made by Lycurgus, their famous Founder and Lawgiver.

LYCURGUS, willing to retrieve his citizens from a luxurious, to a virtuous life, and ſhew them how much good conduct, and honeſt induſtry, might meliorate the ſtate of mankind, applied himſelf to introduce a new model of government, perſwading them to believe, 'That though they were deſcended of noble and virtuous anceſtors, if they were not exerciſed in a courſe of virtue, they would like the dog in the kitchen, rather leap at the meat, than run at the game.' In fine, they agreed to obey him. The firſt thing that he did, to try his power with them, was to divide the land into equal portions, ſo that the whole laconick country ſeem'd but the lots of brethren: This grieved the rich; but the poor, which were the moſt, rejoiced. He rendered wealth uſeleſs by community; and forbad the uſe of gold and ſilver: He made money of iron, too baſe and heavy to make a thief. He retrench'd their laws of building, ſuffering no more ornament than could be made with an hatchet and a ſaw: And their furniture was like their houſes. This courſe diſbanded many trades; no Merchant, no Cook, no Lawyer, no Flatterer, no Divine, no Aſtrologer, was to be found in Lacedæmonia. Injuſtice was baniſh'd their ſociety, having cut up the root of it, which is avarice, by introducing a community, and making gold and ſilver uſeleſs. To prevent the luxury of tables, as well as of apparel, he ordained publick places of eating, where all ſhould publickly be ſerved; thoſe that refuſed to come thither, were reputed voluptuous, and reproved, if not corrected.----------
He would have Virgins labour, as well as young Men, that their Bodies being uſed to Exerciſe, might be the ſtronger and healthier, when married, to bring forth Children. He forbad that they ſhould have any Portions, to the End, that none might make Suit to them for their Wealth, but Perſon and Worth: By which Means, the Poor went off as well as the Rich; and that their Virtue might prefer them, they were denied to uſe any Ornaments. He would not let the young People marry, till they arrived at the Flower of their Age, to the End, that their Children might be ſtrong and vigorous. Chaſtity was ſo general, and ſo much in Requeſt, that no Law was made againſt Adultery; believing, that where Luxury and the Arts leading to it, were ſo ſeverely forbid, it was needleſs. He forbad coſtly Offerings in the Temple, that they might offer often; for that God regardeth the Heart, not the Offering.--------
Theſe, and ſome more, were the Laws he inſtituted; and whilſt the Spartans kept them, 'tis certain they were the firſt State of Greece, which laſted about five Hundred Years. It is remarkable, that he would never ſuffer the Laws to be written, to avoid Barretry; and that the Judges might not be tied Religiouſly to the Letter of the Law, but left to the Circumſtances of the Fact; in which no Inconvenience was obſerved to follow.

Of all Virtues, JUSTICE procures the greateſt Authority and Eſteem.

THERE is no Virtue, the Honour whereof gets a Man more Envy, than that of Juſtice, becauſe it procures great Authority among the common People; they only revere the Valiant, and admire the Wiſe, while they truly love juſt Men; for in theſe have they intire Truſt and Confidence; but of the former, they always fear one, and miſtruſt the other. They look on Valour, as a certain natural Ferment of the Mind, and Wiſdom as the Effect of a fine Conſtitution; but a Man has it in his Power to be juſt, and that is the Reaſon it is ſo diſhonourable to be otherwiſe.

The Origin of the Names of Whig and Tory.

THE ridiculous Names of Diſtinction, Whig and Tory, which many in theſe Times glory in, were at firſt the Nick-names of Enemies, and extremely opprobrious; Whig ſignifying, from the ſuppoſed narrow Principles, and crude and indigeſted Notions of the Field Conventicles in Scotland, Sour Milk; and Tory, firſt uſed by the Proteſtants in Ireland, ſignifying common Robbers and Murderers, who ſtood outlawed for Robbery and Murder.

On GAMING.

IT is ſomewhere mentioned, that Cobilon, the Lacedæmonian, being ſent to Corinth, with a Commiſſion to conclude a Treaty of Friendſhip and Alliance, ſeeing the Captains and Senators of that City playing at Dice, returned home without doing any Thing, ſaying, that he would not ſo much ſully the Glory of the Spartans, as that it ſhould be ſaid, they had made a League with Gameſters.

This honeſt Heathen took every Man addicted to Gaming for a Fool or Knave, and therefore reſolved to have no Dealings with ſuch, as neither Character could be depended on.

The Perniciouſneſs of Gaming was ſo well underſtood by the grand Impoſtor Mahomet, that he tho't it neceſſary to prohibit it expreſly in the Alcoran, not as a Thing naturally evil, but being morally ſo, as a Step to the greateſt Vices: For whilſt we captivate ourſelves to Chance, we loſe our Authority over our Paſſions, being excited to immoderate Deſire, exceſſive Hope, Joy and Grief; we ſtand or fall, at the uncertain Caſt of the Dice, or the turning up of a Card; we are Slaves to the feebleſt Wiſhes, which, if they ſucceed not, we grow furious, profligate and impious; baniſhing all Prudence, Temperance and Juſtice, we become impudent, and fit for the blackeſt Crimes.---Hence the Cheats, the Quarrels, the Oaths and Blaſphemies among Men; and among Women the Neglect of Houſhold Affairs, the unlimited Freedoms, the indecent Paſſion; and laſtly, the known Inlet to all Lewdneſs, when, after an ill Run, the fair One muſt anſwer the Defects of the Purſe with her Perſon.

If Chriſtians have not Humility enough to conform to the Rule of Life laid down in Holy Writ, let them at leaſt have Pride enough to be ſhamed out of this deteſtable Vice, by the Example of Pagans and Mahometans.

Shun Cards and Dice, ſtrong Drink, and Drabs,
The Authors of all Evil;
They Syrens are, that ſing moſt ſweet,
Yet bring Men to the Devil.

The method of ennobling our LIVES, and rendering our Name venerable to Poſterity.

IF Men could but reflect on and conſider the great, the generous Seeds planted in them, that might (if rightly cultivated) ennoble their Lives, and make their Virtue venerable to Futurity, how could they, without Pain, perceive the univerſal Degeneracy from that public Spirit, which ought to be the firſt and principal Motive of all their Actions? The Greeks and Romans were wiſe enough to keep up this great Incentive; with them it was impoſſible to be in the Faſhion, without being a Patriot. All Gallantry had its firſt Source from hence; and to want a Warmth for the Public Welfare, was a Defect ſo ſcandalous, that he who was guilty of it, had no Pretence to Honour or Manhood. When the univerſal Bent of a People ſeems diverted from the Senſe of their common Good and Glory, it looks likes a Fatality, and Criſis of impending Ruin.

The Excellency and Advantages of TEMPERANCE.

O TEMPERANCE! thou Virtue without Pride, and Fortune without Envy; that giveſt Indolence of Body, and Tranquility of Mind; the beſt Guardian of Youth, and Support of Old-age; the Precept of Reaſon as well as Religion, and Phyſician of the Soul, as well as of the Body; the tutelar Goddeſs of Health, and univerſal Medicine of Life!

On a Friend's wiſhing to have FOUR WIVES.

IN a vein of good humour, ſays Hal to his wife,
Thou balm to my ſoul, and thou joy to my life,
Five years now are paſt, or perhaps ſomething more,
By my happy reck'ning 'tis nearer a ſcore,
Since the prieſt, 'fore the altar, united our hands
And rivetted both in the conjugal bands;
Yet the ſtate, and its rites, I ſo truly adore,
That I think ſtill one wife is too little a ſtore,
And the church and my conſcience forbid me a w--re,
Though I hold ſtrictly ſacred both faith and good works,
Yet, in one thing I own, I muſt envy the Turks;
I think it d---'d hard, I'm not telling of fibs,
That an infidel Turk ſhould have four or five ribs;
Whilſt I, a good Chriſtian, and lover of fun,
By the laws of my country, am ſtinted to one:
Nay,---frown not, my lov'ly, nor think that I'll range,
Not to cull the whole world, my dear Poll, would I change:
Already I'm happy, but ſtill would be more,
And, inſtead of one charmer, my dear, I'd have four:
As I meaſure all joys in this tranſient life,
By the fund of affection I find in one wife;
How envy'd a mortal your Harry would be,
If Hymen would grant him to wed t'other three?

Definition of a MIMICK.

A MIMICK is a publick fool, kept alive, and in good humour, at the publick expence. He has many parts to go through, and is doomed, by some fatality or other, to inform mankind without having wisdom enough to profit by his own instructions. He is a satyrist, without virtue; a critick, without learning; and a man, without humanity. He delights himself in the follies, and in the misfortunes, of his fellow creatures; no connexions so sacred which he dares not violate, no merit so blameless which he does not hate, and no foibles so innocent which he does not ridicule and expose. He lives without honour, and he dies without a friend.

A Favourite SONG, sung at VAUXHALL by Mr. VERNON; set by Mr. BREWSTER.

THOUGH man has long boasted an absolute sway,
While woman's hard fate was, love, honour, obey,
At length over wedlock fair liberty dawns,
And the lords of creation must pull in their horns;
For Hymen among ye proclaims his decree
When husbands are tyrants, their wives may be free.
Away with your doubts, your surmises and fears,
'Tis Venus beats up for her gay volunteers;
Enlist at her banner, you'll vanquish with ease,
And make of your husbands what creatures you please:
To arms then ye fair ones, and let the world see,
When husbands are tyrants, their wives will be free.
The rights of your sex wou'd ye e'er see restored,
Your tongues shou'd be us'd as a two-edged sword;
That ear-piercing weapon each husband must dread,
Who thinks on the marks you may place on his head:
Then wisely unite, till the men all agree,
That woman, dear woman, shall ever be free.
No more shall the wife, all as meek as a lamb,
Be subject to "Zounds, do you know who I am?"
Domestic politeness shall flourish again,
When women take courage to govern the men;
Then stand to your charter, and let the world see,
Tho' husbands are tyrants, their wives will be free.

The Fortunate SAILOR

HONEST Sim and his Wife once to Sea took a Trip,
When a sudden cross Wind overset the light Ship;
Hand in Hand over Deck went this Couple together,
Susan sunk like a stone, Simon swam like a Feather
Thank my Stars, says the Man (safe escap'd from the Flood)
Tis a bad Wind, indeed, that blows no-body Good.
